CURRENT REPORT OF SALE.
In yesterday's issue of the Bulletin an account was given of the sale of the Great property to eastern capitalists for a sum in the neighborhood of $80,000. A report was circulated last night to the effect that the purchase was made by the C. P. R. This morning the Bulletin interviewed Mr. T. A. Stephen, the agent who made the sale and he denied that the C. P. R. had anything whatever to do with it, further stating that the report given in yesterday's Bulletin was quite correct.

LOCAL.

—Train one hour late.

—Dr. Blais went to Calgary this morning.

—Professor Hapburn returned to Edmonton last night on a visit.

—Prairie fires are raging in the Regina district, doing a great amount of damage.

—Weather: yesterday, maximum temperature, 55. Today, minimum temperature 33.

—Seven carloads of prime cattle were shipped from Wetaskiwin this week to Baros and Co. Calgary.

—"Pay as you go" will be the subject of Pastor McDonald's address on Sunday evening at the Baptist church.

Wetaskiwin ratepayers defeated the by-law to provide $15,000 to erect a new brick school this year.

—Rev. Mr. Hoagins went to Wetaskiwin this morning. He will hold service in the Methodist church there tomorrow.

—Alex. Abel and W. W. Barnett, of Lacombe, arrived in Edmonton this week where they will spend the summer.

—H. B. Anderson, Ledo, arrived in Edmonton on last night's train to spend Saturday and Sunday with Edmonton friends.

—The Canadian Pacific traffic receipts ending April 14th were $909,000 for the same week last year they were $704,000.

—The city of Duluth has instituted a back yard day, one day in the spring of each year being set apart for the general cleaning of all lanes and back yards.

—R. W. Fletcher, of the Inland Revenue office, Calgary, arrived Thursday night. He is collecting food samples for the government analyst and reports everything satisfactory. He will probably go south on Monday.

—Real estate in the Wetaskiwin district is rapidly increasing in value. Last week Messrs. Smith & Dunkirk sold a half section to John Barry at $20 an acre. This land is about 8 miles south of town. Mr. Barry also bought H. Utas' quarter in the same locality, paying nearly twenty dollars an acre.

—The hypnotic entertainment in Robertson's Hall last night afforded loads of amusement. Mr. Griffith, however, would do well to confine his attention to his genuinely hypnotized subjects. The stone breaking feature did not come off; first, a sledge-hammer was not available, and then the rock could not be lifted onto the subject's body.

—A mass meeting of the young people's Christian Endeavor Societies is being arranged to be held in the Edmonton Presbyterian Church for the purpose of forming a Christian Endeavor union. A short and interesting program is now being arranged for but full announcements will be made later. The date will be Monday evening May 4th, unless otherwise announced.

SEEDING IN NORTHERN ALBERTA.

The appended table, taken from the diary of E. G. Hutchings, Edmonton, gives the dates of the seeding season in northern Alberta during the years from 1885 to 1891, 1894 and 1897. It is to be understood that these dates will vary somewhat according to the nature of the soil and the lay of the land. Some of our correspondents might furnish us with a similar list from 1898 up to the present.

WESTERN CANADA COLLEGE.

Calgary Herald.

The sub-committee of the Calgary Presbytery has decided to report favorably on the establishment of a college for boys and girls at Calgary. It will be under the control of the Calgary Presbytery, though probably organized on a joint stock company basis. The name of the college was recommended to be that of "The Western Canada College." The local committee appointed to act with the committee of the Presbytery is Rev. Dr. Herdman, James Muir, James Short, C. A. Stuart, and W. McDavidson.

RAILWAY FOR BARR COLONY.

Montreal, April 23.—D. B. Hanna, of the Canadian Northern Railway, has announced that his company intend to build through the Barr colony. The railroad has placed orders for 75 thousand new cars, and plans have been completed by which the Leyland line will transport all freight loaded by the Canadian Northern for foreign markets.

The Barr Colonists Trek.

Calgary Herald.

Saskatoon, April 21.—The grand trek of the Barr colonists commenced today. Twenty-five transports left at 4 o'clock today. Within forty rods of the camp the first team stuck in a muskeg and an extra team had to be attached to drag it out. A large party will leave tomorrow. There will be forty wagon loads tomorrow. These were hustled out by the government officials who are heartily tired of the dilatory methods of the Rev. Mr. Barr. If they had not taken hold the start would not have been made today. Many colonists are getting restless because of the delay. Funds are getting low and they are beginning to truly realize the seriousness of the problem ahead of them. In fact all that is needed for open revolt is leaders. I have yet to hear from the rank and file a good word for Rev. Mr. Barr. They want to finish the journey and get to work.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

WILL TOUR THE WEST.

Managing Director and Superintendent of the Crown Life coming to Edmonton next month.

Mr. Geo. H. Roberts, Managing Director, and Mr. William Wallace, Superintendent of the Crown Life Insurance company, the head office of which is in Toronto, will make a tour of the West in the interests of the company this spring. AN OPEN LETTER

To the Builders of Edmonton District.

Gentlemen: No doubt you have heard and read in the papers recently a great deal about the so-called "LUMBER COMBINE," and the consequent advance of prices. In this connection a few statements of fact from us may be in order.

The manufacturers of British Columbia advise us that the advance in prices is due to the increased cost of labor and of materials and that this justifies the advanced prices to the trade. Whether this is true or not we are not in a position to judge.

But we do know that it is very difficult to get orders for B. C. lumber filled with any degree of promptness. Many of the mills are sold out of stock and cannot at present ship a car. We therefore claim that the advanced prices are due to scarcity of lumber. The price of any commodity is regulated in our day not so much by the cost of production as by the general demand for the commodity.

As to our own prices we beg to say that we are careful to see that they bear a right relation to cost. We cannot help the rise in B. C. lumber because the cost price is considerably advanced. But in the lines of our own manufacture such as Windows, Doors, Frames, etc., our prices are lower than the prices for the same articles either in British Columbia or Manitoba. This will indicate to you our position in this matter.

In view of the scarcity referred to if you are building or intend to do so, we advise you to place your order with us as soon as possible so that we may get in a position to fill it when required. We promise to do the very best for our customers that circumstances will permit.

Very Truly Yours,

Bulletin Correspondence.

R. L. Borden, leader of the opposition, made his criticism of the budget announcements of the Finance Minister yesterday afternoon. He occupied about the same time in criticisms as the Minister did in statement, and closed his remarks just before six o'clock. He was in excellent form and with a more forcible delivery than usual, his close reasoning and pointed comparisons were decidedly effective. His speech was evidently the result of careful preparation, for which he had secured opportunity by the adjournment of the debate from the previous afternoon. The latter part of his remarks were chiefly read from typewritten sheets, but that detracted very little from the effect of his delivery, and no doubt insured a more compact and comprehensive, as well as correct, statement of the position in which he purposes to stand. It must be said, however, that although his criticism was clever as criticism, it was not in any sense fruitful, that is, as defining or even suggesting an alternative policy on the points which he most effectively criticised. He spoke of large expenditures and high taxation, but was careful not to commit himself to a policy of reduced expenditure or lessened taxation. The cleverness of his criticism of the financial condition of the country and the policy of the government, consisted in contrasting selected expressions by individual members of the Liberal party of ten to twenty years ago, with the facts. A form of criticism which gives ample scope for the manifestation of humor, without being either helpful or harmful in the working out of the problems of state. When he came to the question of tariff, he was scarcely as effective as in finance, for here his great objection to the tariff policy of the government was its similarity to his own. He sneered at the government for not having abolished duties, while specifically declaring for and pledging his party to a policy of more duties, higher duties, and free all along the line. Those who said that the Liberal government has not made the most of its opportunities for lightening the tariff burdens of the people, are offered no relief at the hands of the opposition. If they complain that under the present policy they are chastised with whips, his alternative is, that if given the opportunity, he will chastise them with scorpions. The proposed duty on steel rails, he claimed as his own and the only fault he had with retaliation against Germany was that it should have been begun long ago. He blames the government because lead duties have not been imposed, pointing out that the lead miner has to pay under a protective tariff to the farmer, and then declares that the protection to the farmer is not high enough. The attitude of the government towards the British preference he claims as his own and proposes to introduce a resolution on the same subject at a later stage. He rebukes the government cleverly for its change of attitude in regard to the British preference, but refrains from recognizing the radical change in positions surrounding that preference which occurred when Britain abandoned her traditional policy of free bread. A government or an opposition which does not recognize such a change of policy requiring a change of attitude in other parties concerned, is, or should be, scarcely worthy of a place in the politics of intelligent people. He found fault because the imports from Britain had not increased to the same extent as those from the United States, and his remedy for the evil was to bar them both out. There are certain features in regard to this matter of comparative dealings between Canada and Britain and the United States which Mr. Borden neglected to specify. The imports from Britain are, necessarily, limited by manufacturers, while Canada's imports from the United States are chiefly actual raw material required by the manufacturers of Canada, or partly finished goods which are admitted either free or at a low tariff, in order that they may be used in their business as a part of their raw material. It is the limit of hypocrisy on the part of the manufacturing interests to cry out against the increased imports from the United States when those imports are largely if not chiefly admitted for their special benefit and use. It is not the imports from the United States which hurt the feelings of our manufacturing friends, it is the increased imports of finished manufactures from Britain under the preference. And the cry of danger of Canada being made a slaughter market and dumping ground by United States factories is merely an excuse for securing the abolition of the British preference. He set forth a number of reasons for believing that the present government was practically committed to a general increase of the tariff, but he objected to the delay. This was in fact the only effective criticism he had to offer on the subject. After stating the large amount of imports of manufactured articles from Great Britain and United States he said, "Was there any reason why a very considerable portion of these might not be produced in Canada and why should revision of the tariff be delayed if this could be assisted thereby?" There is only one way of interpreting these words and it is that the tariff should be so increased as to prohibit the importation of these manufactures from both Great Britain and the United States. If there were any question on this point it would be settled by the following paragraph in a series of specific statements as to what he considered the policy for Canada should be: "To preserve by means of an adequately protective tariff our own home market for our own people, and to have the policy of the government so declared and understood."

Taking his speech as a whole there was no reason advanced by the leader of the opposition, why himself and his followers should be entrusted with power at the hands of the Canadian people except that if they were entrusted they would apply the principle of a prohibitive tariff in favor of manufacturing industries. To those whose interests lie in the special advantage of manufacturers as compared with the great producing industries his position must certainly appeal; but on the other hand, for those whose interests lie with the great producing industries of the farm, the forest, the fishery and the mine, his policy and principles are such as they cannot approve. For while he speaks of protection to agriculture and to labor he indicates no means whereby these interests are to be adequately protected. His tariff policy is summed up in the following resolution, which he moved as an amendment to the motion of acceptance of the announcements of the Finance Minister.

"This house, regarding the operation of the present tariff as unsatisfactory, is of opinion that this country requires a declared policy of such adequate protection to its labor, agricultural products, manufactures and industries as would at all times secure the Canadian market for Canadians; and that the financial policy of the government should include a measure for the thorough and judicious readjustment of the tariff at the present session."

This is a part of the resolution which he moved last year and indicates that whatever else may change, the demand of the manufacturers of Canada for undue advantage over the rest of the people, does not change nor has the Conservative party ceased to be willing to be the means of their securing that advantage.

OFFERS ON

MONDAY, MAY 4TH, 1903,

200 LOTS - 50 X 150

ON

Kenneth Macdonald Flats

The Finest Alluvial Soil on Earth.

On each Lot enough may be grown to support a family.

The property adjoins Little's brick yard on the South, the Experimental Farm on the North, and overlooks the Saskatchewan on the East.

The opposite bank of the river, rising in natural terraces from the water's edge to an average height of 150 feet, beautifully wooded, affords A PANORAMA OF HARMONY AND DELIGHT.

Edmonton has passed the experimental stage, and will possess in a few years a metropolitan population.

The Railway Question is settled. The Canadian Pacific, Grand Trunk and Canadian Northern are assured quantities.

A fact not generally known substantiates that Edmonton will be a terminus for some years, is that the carrying capacity of the Canadian Pacific exceeds the Oriental and British Columbian trades combined, and the three great roads mentioned will halt before pushing on to the Pacific, thereby making our city of vastly more importance than it would otherwise have been.

Much of the timber is primeval. The principal streets will be boulevarded, and ancient growth furnish overshade.

Maps and schedules of prices open for inspection at W. H. Hooper Company's Office on May 4, 1903.

MacDonald as I Knew Him

A. C. Hales in London Daily News.
Dead in a foreign land! Fallen no: at the head of his old brigade; not in the storm and stress of battle, but alone, by his own hand, with the shadow of a charge of wrong hanging over him. As I think of it my blood runs cold in my veins, for as a soldier he was great. I think of the dead man lying on French soil, lonely in the grim grasp of death, and then my mind goes swiftly back to him as I so often saw him on the great, far-spreading African plain as he fronted our foes in battle; and I forget the dead man, and remember only the living leader, who, whatever his faults may have been, was at least a devoted servant of his country when peril crowded around the soldiers whom he led.

Of the charge that made him take his life I know nothing. I know no more than any other man in Britain whether or not he had cause to efface himself; but this I do know, that when his country needed him and rifles spoke their language of death, in Egypt, India or Africa, no man in our island was more prompt to go where graves were being tilled than this bold Scot, who was yesterday a hero to-day a suicide.

As I think of him I can almost hear again the rustling of the Highlanders' feet through the velvet grass and the snarl of the swaying kilt on the African air. I can picture him at Eadlin, the bivouacking ground of the Australian troops, and as the scene comes back I can almost hear again the deep toned cheers of the unburned bushmen as they rushed to meet the man who was to them an ideal soldier and a leader of men. He came amongst them suddenly, without one warning sound and, stepping from a passing train marched with classic tread along the lines of tents where the bushmen lay about in careless fashion, ready to fight, but averse to go through the routine work of camp. To some of these rough colonials might have seemed unsoldierlike and crude. But not to him, for he had fought against such men, and knew that pipe clay did not make a warrior. He saw them lounging in their shirt sleeves with rifles piled in disarray when the shadows fell, as he looked he laughed, the quick short, magnetic laugh, which told them they were understood. And when the word was passed from group to group that this was "Bector," and, like a mob of boys fresh loosed from school, they swarmed around him, teasing their rough felt hats high in the air and cheering as they used to cheer upon the cattle stations when a mad-

WILL OFFER ON

MONDAY, MAY 4th, 1903,

200 = LOTS = 200

A portion of the ROWLAND ESTATE, otherwise known as "THE SYNDICATE."

Plans and Prices can be seen at the Office on and after the date mentioned.

This is the closest and best property available, and the choicest in and about Edmonton. The furthest part is from 10 to 15 minutes from the post office. The property is eminently the people's portion: is not controlled by a policy of inertia dictated by "Hebraic Hatred." The surveys conform to existing ones, and the streets will be projected to their legitimate confines. Building Sites on the verge of the hill overlooking the mighty Saskatchewan, the foliage and verdure of whose banks is not exceeded by the fiercest tropics or softest Pacific scenes, abound. Prices will be uniform and moderate, tempered as a corrective of the present indefinite craze.

TERMS.—One third Cash. Balance 6 and 12 months, interest 8 per cent. Agreements $2 each, transfers free.

McDonald as I Knew Him

dened herd of hoots and horns broke for the scrub and had to be wheeled for the open at the risk of life and limb. He, alert, keen-eyed, resolute of face and bearing, looking from head to heel a soldier, heard their cheers and tossed them short, sharp, words of thanks, and left them the richer for the magnetism of his presence. That was his way. He did not waste his words, but gave to soldiers what the soldier loves—crisp praise or blame. I saw MacDonald once again, upon the banks of the Modder, with a broken band of men around him, the shattered remnants of the Highland brigade, sullen and sore from defeat almost within the shadows that Cronje's stronghold cast; and none who saw him there, just out of range of Magerfontein's surly heights, could have foretold that he would live to die the death he has died. He went amongst the men with eyes that flashed along the shattered ranks and woke the Highland pride. He did not whip them with words, but every glance told the soldiers that he had hoped for better things from men who wore the Highland colors; and they knew what lay behind that glance, and braced themselves for better things; and in his hand the old brigade became once more the very flower of Britain's chivalry.

Once again I saw him, marching with his men across the Free State like a man of fire, and wherever MacDonald and his Highlanders advanced the enemy fell back; for with MacDonald at their head the Highlanders were irresistible. No Boer commando could be got to front them when they handled their bayonets. How, he has gone, and all his faults and failings, like his soldierly gifts, must be buried with him. He did not die as all who knew him thought, to see him die, in the swift rush of battle. He died in the solitude of his own room, by his own hand. Better for him, and better for Scotland, had he died as Wauchope died, facing the enemies of his country, intrepid to the last. Had he gone down in some stormy scene, bearing himself as blithely as he always did in war, the English speaking world would have thrown nothing but flowers upon his grave; but he was brave and resolute, and ready always to take the post where death was busiest, a man of iron nerve, of granite will, inflexible where many another wavered. Let this be said of him now, he has gone—he never turned his face away from his country's foes and never brought reproach upon his country's flag.
